Liz Ball : Pennsylvania Gardener's Guide before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Pennsylvania Gardener's Guide:

It has beautiful pictures and succinct explanations. I do not think this is for a beginning gardener. You need to know certain things, but as you learn, patiently, through trial and error, year after year, you will find yourself going back to this little book (looks more like a magazine) and referring to it for its clear guidance.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy RMYBeautiful and informative. A needed go-to book for any gardener.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. grow where you are plantedBy kathy1895I keep going back to this book to discuss strategy with my landscaper. we used the book so frequently, I got them one also! a must have as far as I am concerned.

Gardening is now the favorite leisure pastime in America. Homeowners are realizing the health benefits derived from gardening and the increase in their home's property value.

About the Author Liz Ball is a horticultural writer, photographer, researcher, and teacher whose articles and photographs have appeared in numerous catalogs, magazines, and books. Ball wrote regularly for the National Garden Bureau and Burpee's websites. Her weekly Yardening column appeared in her local newspaper for more than fourteen years. Ball has authored or co-authored a multitude of books, including the Pennsylvania Gardener's Guide (also for Cool Springs Press). She writes on a large number of topics for gardeners but specializes in addressing issues that concern non-gardening homeowners who have lawns and plants to care for but a limited amount of time or interest of working in the yard (whom she calls "yardeners.") After decades spent teaching writing, literature, and history at the secondary school level, Ball devoted herself to horticulture. She has taught courses on gardening for local community adult and arboretum programs, as well as for various universities. Ball is a frequent lecturer, speaking often to garden clubs, hort societies, civic groups and to the public. In her spare time, Ball concentrates on a two-acre yard that serves as her informal laboratory and demonstration garden for all her "experiments."
